Câu trả lời mẫu:

A few years ago, I took a long weekend to Phu Quoc Island, a triangle-shaped island in the south of Vietnam. I went there with some of my best buddies, and we had a wonderful time exploring the island. We stayed in a youth hostel and met some really nice people. But the most memorable thing about the holiday was the breathtaking ocean and lovely picturesque coastline. Since it can get very busy with hordes of tourists, we decided to go out of season at the beginning of the rainy months. Although the weather was a little rainy at some points of the trip, we enjoyed the holiday. It's certainly not the kind of short break for someone looking for a busy nightlife, but if you want to relax in the middle of stunning landscapes, I would certainly recommend taking some time off in Phu Quoc.

Vocabulary notes:

a best buddy: a very close friend

a youth hotel: a cheap place where young people can stay while traveling breathtaking: extremely beautiful or impressive picturesque: visually beautiful, like a picture coastline: area where the land meets the sea hordes of tourists: large groups of visitors out of season: not during the popular time for visiting a place stunning: extremely impressive or beautiful landscape: natural scenery to take time off: to have a period of time for rest or relaxation

Part 3

Question : Do you think it is possible to become real friends with people you meet on the internet?

00:00 / 00:37

Câu trả lời của bạn:

I don't think so. Just on the Internet there's a lot of scams. Lots of. Lies and that information which can in which you can be easily. Manipulated and you? Can't find a real. Real relationships on the Internet?

Câu trả lời mẫu:

Of course, it is possible to establish a real friendship with someone online. What you need in a friendship are reliability, empathy, respect, and loyalty. If you're getting all of that from your online friends, then you can consider them genuine friends. Although I haven't met any of the friends I made online, I do consider one to be a real friend as we've been chatting almost daily for about two years. I feel comfortable sharing my highs and lows with her. She listens attentively and offers advice from time to time.

Vocabulary notes:

to establish a friendship: to start a relationship with a new friend reliability: the quality of being able to be trusted empathy: the ability to understand and share someone else's feelings loyalty: the quality of being faithful and committed to supporting someone a genuine friend: someone who truly cares about you highs and lows: the good and bad times in life from time to time: occasionally
