

The bar chart below shows the estimated sales of jeans for two companies next year in Turkey.

Overall, the chart predicts an upward trend in sales of jeans. Furthermore, Turkish customers are predicted to purchase more jeans from Jack & Jones Co.

Regarding Mango, between January and August, Mango's sales will increase by about 450.000 pairs. Following this, they will plateau until November and will finally show a positive rise in December, to end the year at approximately 600.000 pairs.

In terms of Jack & Jones, they will begin and end the year, outselling Mango by 300.000 pairs. However, sales will dip in February to about 200.000 pairs, before increasing to around 400.000 pairs in June. Then, sales are expected to stagnate until August. Jack&Jones Co.'s sales will more than recover in September and October, selling about 600.000 pairs of jeans in both months. In the subsequent months, a steady rise is predicted, and sales will hit a peak of 900.000 by the close of the year.
