The Temple of Literature: A UNESCO World Heritage Site

The Temple of Literature was the first university in Vietnam. It was established in 1070 by Emperor Ly Thanh Tong during the Ly dynasty. The university was located in the capital city of Thang Long, which is now Hanoi.

The Imperial Academy was a significant institution in Vietnamese history. It was a center of learning and culture, and it produced many of the country's most important leaders and scholars. The university's closure in 1779 was a setback for Vietnamese education, but it was reopened in 1904. Today, the Imperial Academy is a museum and a UNESCO World Heritage Site. It is a reminder of Vietnam's rich cultural heritage and its long tradition of learning.
